TAX REDUCTION HEADS OPPOSE MERGER PLAN

Speakers Attack Welfare Proposal at Informal Session of Council.

CITY TAKES NO ACTION

Family Welfare Society Urges Consolidation To Promote Greater Efficiency.

The proposed merger of the Family Welfare society and the city poor relief department for relief work this winter developed a new angle at an informal meeting of city council and representatives of the Welfare society last night when members of the tax reduction group headed by J. W. Jacoby, Dr. F. C. Smith and Karl Schell protested the proposed consolidation.

Opening as a discussion between council and the Welfare representatives, the meeting developed into an argument between the Welfare society and the tax reduction group members as the latter brought out their reasons for opposing the merger. Since the meeting was informal, no action was taken by council.

Although no definite date was set for action on the proposal, council is expected to give it formal consideration at its regular meeting next Monday night.

Approves Merger

The desire to centralize the welfare activities of the city to promote greater efficiency in the handling of the relief work was given as the reason for the merger in a five-page communication from the Welfare society. It was read by Wilbur Sypher.

Dr. F. C. Smith declared himself

opposed to the merger of the two bodies. Addressing H. B. Walker, president of the society, Dr. Smith said that while he did not question its motive, he was of the belief that the welfare society should not have any part in the distribution of the relief money. "The city should be big enough and sufficiently organized to take care of its own relief work," he said.

Attacking the tax question, Dr. Smith declared the burden was becoming unbearable and urged a cut in government costs. "While other men are taking salary reductions, city and county officials are receiving the same pay as in 1928," the speaker declared. This, he said, was equal to an increase of at least 14½ per cent, with the cost of living far below that of 1928.

Urges Salary Reduction

That the pay now being received by city and county officials was equal to a 20 per cent increase, was the opinion of J. W. Jacoby, who also was a speaker. He also declared for a reduction of salaries of

MAJOR LINK FORGED IN KANE TESTIMONY

Mystery Letter Writer Identified in Tennessee Murder Case.

By The Associated Press

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 22—The testimony to be offered for and against Professor Elisha Kent Kane was definitely indicated today as preparations were made for his preliminary hearing tomorrow on a charge of murdering his wife.

Coroner George K. Vandersliee's certified report, which was filed yesterday, gave for the first time definite information of evidence the parents of Mrs. Jenny Graham Kane offered to support the theory that the University of Tennessee professor drowned his wife after premeditation.

The writer of the mysterious letters signed "Betty," was identified yesterday by her mother, as Mrs. Elizabeth D. Dahl, of New York. The coroner said the letters were an important factor in the return of a murder verdict.

Mrs. Phoebe Harris, 70, the mother, said at her home in Philadelphia that her daughter had written the letters but that the wrong impression had been given by quotations from them. She told of an alleged attachment between Mrs. Dahl and Professor Kane but said it had needed. Her daughter believed in the innocence of the accused man and was prepared to stand by him in his trial although now engaged to another man, the mother said.

Conflicting with this claim of harmless friendship and innocent correspondence were the statements of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Graham, aunt at the coroner's inquest.

Graham testified his daughter had told him she feared something might happen, "but I will die before this woman shall have him."

Woman Slain in Home.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 22—Mrs. Mary Dowell, 58, is dead of injuries received when an unidentified man forced through a locked screen door of her home shortly after midnight. Police started a search for what was supposed to be a man in a small automobile in the vicinity of the home. Mrs. Dowell, widow of one of the oldest residents of this city, was alone

MERCURY HITS 93 MARK HERE

Storms Miss City; Kill Eight Persons in Central West.

EXPECT RELIEF TONIGHT

Temperature Nears September Record as Fall Heat Wave Continues.

While eight persons were killed and an undetermined number injured last night in a wind and electrical storm which swept the central west from Kansas to Ohio, Marion residents continued to swelter from unseasonal temperatures during one of the hottest September days in 23 years. Tehterday the thermometer touched a high of 93 degrees. The record for September was set in 1908 when the mercury reached 100 degrees on Sept. 22.

Possible relief from the heat is in sight with the forecast reading generally fair and cooler tonight and Wednesday.

A trace of rain here shortly after midnight this morning failed to bring relief. Yesterday's low was recorded as 75 degrees, with temperatures of one year ago reading 82 degrees for the high and 60 degrees for the low mark.

NIGHT RAINBOW IS REPORTED HERE

Persons interested in the heavens last night around midnight were treated to something unusual in the way of a rainbow which spanned the sky across the northeast. A rainstorm, making a detour of this section by going north and east and the moon which shone brightly, combined to produce the rainbow. The rainbow was seen about 12:20 a. m. by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Barnthouse residing northwest of the city, and lasted about five minutes.

U. S. HOPEFUL OVER BRITISH SITUATION

Government Here Thinks New Finance Move Will Aid World Business.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — The American government regards Great Britain's temporary suspension of the gold standard as likely to improve economic conditions in England and elsewhere, in the world. This was made clear today in highest quarters.

The position was taken that the actual suspension could not be regarded as serious as has been the constant possibility of the action.

So far as the United States is concerned, it may bring a change or competition in certain exports where American business is in competition with Britain products.

This estimate of effect of the act is said to be based on the assumption that Britain's action will not be followed by the abandonment of the gold standard.

EMANCIPATION DAY PAROLES GRANTED

They were Dan Chinn of Cuyahoga county, sentenced in September, 1921 for first degree murder and Daniel Anderson of Trumbull county, sentenced in April 1924 on a second degree murder charge.

VETS MARCH IN 4-MILE PARADE

Brilliant Display of Pageantry, Color Marks 13th Review of Legionnaires.

SPECTATORS LINE ROUTE

Allied Nations as Well as U. S. Represented in Gigantic Spectacle.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22 — Memory and martial music brought back the freshness of youth to 100,000 feet today as the American Legion passed in review for the thirteenth time since its members were mustered out of their country's service.

Shoulders that once ached under pack straps and since have become rounded and stooped over desk and work bench straightened again as the boys of '17 who are the men of '31 heeded the cry of "forward march."

Four Miles Long

The line of march was fully four miles long. It started forming at 10:30 a. m. on Jefferson avenue and Grand Boulevard—three miles from the reviewing stand, and the last units were instructed to report in parade order four hours later. By O. L. Bodenhamer of Arkansas, past national commander, the parade moved to the music of nearly 100 bands and drum corps—organizations which came from the far corners of the nation.

There were no restrictions on devices to put color into the parade, and so it became a conglomerated mixture of militant patriotism, brilliant pageantry and allegorical floats. Some of the latter were in a serious vein—more appealed to the spectators' sense of humor.

There were uniforms of all colors and descriptions.

Gesture of Respect

As a gesture of respect to visitors from outside the United States legionnaires of the territories, Canada, Mexico and Europe followed close behind the automobile which bore distinguished guests, including the fraternal representatives from the allied nations.

RADIOS TALE OF RESCUING OCEAN FLIERS

Norwegian Sea Captain Picks Up Lost Aviators After Week Adrift.

PLANE'S ENGINE FAILED

Occupants Lost Hope as Earlier Ship Passed Signals by Unnoticed.

By United Press

Three aviators the world had given up as lost and whom fate cheated of success on a transatlantic flight almost within sight of land were safe aboard a ship today after floating for a week on the wreckage of their plane.

They were Willy Rody, young German who bought the Junkers monoplane Essa with money he inherited; Christian Johanssen, a young Dane he secured as pilot; and Fernando Costa Viega, youthful Portuguese adventurer who joined the party at Lisbon, Portugal, the starting point of their flight.

Costa Veiga had an injured leg, but the others were unhurt. They were rescued yesterday afternoon off New Foundland by the freighter Belmoira, enroute to Russia. Captain Christian Hald of the Belmoira radioed the story of their rescue from the bobbing wreckage.

BY CAPTAIN CHRISTIAN HALD
(Skipper of The S. S. Belmoira)

ABOARD S.S. BELMOIRA, Sept. 22—We picked up the wrecked transatlantic plane Esa and its crew in latitude 45.26 longitude 54.31 yesterday afternoon.

The three aviators, Willy Rody, Christian Johanssen and Fernando Costa Viega were saved after they had been in the water 168 hours. Costa Viega had an injured leg. The other two were in good condition, although they were exhausted.

Johanssen says the plane failed to reach its destination because of engine trouble about 20 minutes after signalling the S. S. Pennland a week ago Monday afternoon. (The report from the Pennland was the last that had been heard of the Esa until Captain Hald's message.)

Signals Futile

The fliers said they had sighted only one ship during the intervening days they were adrift. It passed within one kilometer but did not see them despite their signals.

They had given up hope and did not expect our ship to see them, as they were several miles away when we passed.

Rody, Johanssen and Costa Viega assumed almost certain of reaching their destination, New York, when the Pennland reported them just off Cape Race Sept. 14. They had covered the distance from Lisbon in good time, reported only once enroute over the Azores.

Although they were far north of

An interior view of the radio department of the Schaffner Furniture Co. is shown above. The department is complete in every detail and carries a full line of the latest improved models of the Majestic radio. All the recent developments of the world's greatest radio engineers are included in the Majestic.

'Spray Shield' Tube Brings Better Radio Performance

Majestic has easily led the industry by having a complete line of superheterodynes featuring the Multi Mu tube now being used together with the pentode by all makers the Schaffner Furniture Co., local dealers say. The new line of Majestics is not only Multi Mu and pentode but contains three new features that apparently are exclusively Majestic and make it a certainty that Majestic leadership will be still further and materially strengthened.

Majestic went to Germany for data on this tube and methods of applying the heavy metal coating sprayed directly on the glass. Two important advantages are secured by this sprayed-on metal. First the need for the round, perforated metal shielding cans or square metal compartments in receivers is eliminated as this metal acts as an even better shield than did either of these two older methods. Second, this metal directly on the glass aids the "screen-grid effect" within the tube, making types 51, 24 and 27 yet more stable and feed-back and permitting you to run these types when sprayed at higher efficiency and with more gain per stage.

Twin Power Detection

The second important new Majestic feature is twin power detection. Majestic found that two leading British radio engineers had built a marvelously perfect receiver called the perfect quality receiver which had been placed in the science museum in England. Aside from exceptional care in matters of shielding, choice of resistors, design of transformers etc., the only real outstanding development was the use of two detectors in push-pull using what is called grid rectification instead of that previously used in this country known as plate rectification.

These British engineers had found out how to make grid rectification handle power, so Majestic developed this to practical application in a mass production receiver so Majestic will introduce to America the first "twin power detection." The chief value is that the user now gets all the music rather than only part of it and the bottle neck which has existed to some degree between the radio amplification part of a receiver and the audio part is now eliminated.

Modulated Circuit

The third genuine development found in these new Majestic receivers is that which makes it possible to provide you with a five-tube superheterodyne. It is a development of the Hazeltine laboratories carried to successful conclusion by Majestic engineers and found in the type 15 chassis used in four models. This modulated circuit enables Majestic to combine the functions of the first detector and the oscillator thus eliminating one tube and, by using a pentode in place of a pair type-45's we are able to offer the public a set at $44.50 which concedes nothing to any seven tube superheterodyne in selectivity, range or tone quality. As a matter of fact this new circuit is slightly sharper in pulling through distant stations yet does not spoil reproduction.

Eight new models are offered at $44.50 to $290.

Looking in On Television

BY C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK—Eight is to be added to another of New York's broadcast stations within a short time provided an application for short wave television licenses is granted.

Thus WMCA, 545 kilocycles plans to join WGBS 1180 kilocycles, in the transmission of pictures by radio. This would bring the number of local light stations to five. The others now operating are W2XAB of CBS, W2XCR, W2XBS of NBC and W2XR handling sight alone or putting sound on short waves.

Two licenses have been applied for, one for use in the television channels between 100 and 150 meters to transmit 60 line pictures. The other is for the ultra short waves under 10 meters upon which it is intended to conduct a series of tests on 120, 180 and 240 lines with both mechanical and electrical scanning.

Equipment to be used is to be that designed by the Baird company of London, marking its first appearance in the American television market. All of it, however, is to be made in America.

Heretofore the Baird activities in the United States have been confined to the New York laboratories, where appliances designed by John L. Baird, the Scot inventor, have been demonstrated from time to time, including 30-line vertically scanned pictures.

The shift to 60 lines to correspond to tentative American standards also involves the use of the horizontal scanning, the generally accepted method here.

In that connection the local laboratories report that work has been started on receivers designed to project an image a foot or more square for which both a mirror drum and a lens disk have been considered. One objective is to obtain as bright a screen as possible so that the room will not have to be completely darkened while looking in.

TUBE CHANGING IN SPARTONS SIMPLE

Improvements in radio that permits the owner to take out a burned-out tube and replace it with a new one without throwing the rest of the tubes out of balance is one of the unusual features of the new Sparton radio sets.

The tube capacity of most of the Sparton chassis has been built up to such an extent that variations in any substituted tube are so slight in comparison to the total that the variation is not felt.

In many of the super-sonne of superheterodyne Sparton models any tube except the oscillator can be changed without realignment. This tube may be changed without serious results but realignment is recommended.

This peculiarity is expected to be of great value both to owners and dealers in that it will save the time of the dealer's service man and will permit the owner to make his own tube replacements when they should be made without delay.

Sparton radios are distributed exclusively in Marion by Mautz Bros. hardware. Every afternoon demonstrations are being made showing the outstanding new LaFoy automatic volume control used only by Sparton and full description of the Sparton visionola, a complete home talkie-movie with combined radio and phonograph.

New Yorker Proves He's a Gentleman by Dive Off Roof.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Frank Tyler, 25, returning from a party early today, ascended to the roof of the wrong house and undressed, under the impression he was in his own bedroom.

Just as several women residents of the apartment building arrived with a squad of police, Tyler discovered his predicament. He took one look at the women and the bluecoats, and dived off the edge of the roof.

"It was the only thing possible for a gentleman to do under the circumstances," he explained later in a hospital.

NEW BRITISH PLAN GOES INTO EFFECT

Commons Votes Out Gold Standard in Face of Weak Opposition

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 22 — Rushed through parliament in record time and signed by a royal commission, the British government's emergency measure suspending the gold standard went in effect today for a period of six months. The stock exchange was closed for the second day.

The house of commons passed it just before closing time last night in spite of half-hearted attacks by Labor back-benchers and the house of lords required only two minutes to give it the necessary three readings. The commission acted for King George, who is in Scotland.

Chancellor Philip Snowden, who sponsored the measure, went on the air to assure the nation that the fall in the pound sterling would be "limited" and to invoke its confidence in the government's ability to weather the crisis.

The consequences of the suspension, he said, "are bound to be disagreeable. In some ways they may be serious but they will not be catastrophic. The pound will not go the way of the (post war) franc or the mark.

"The British budget is now the most securely balanced budget in the world. There is no longer any risk of an internal inflation and there are no longer any grounds for distrusting the essential soundness of our financial position," he said.

He expressed regret at the plight of some Americans among other foreigners "who still have money deposited here and will be able to take it back—if they wish to take it back—in depreciated pounds, and will therefore suffer a loss in terms of their own currencies. We deplore that loss and have done all we can to avert it.

COUNCIL HEARS RATE PROPOSAL

Representative of Gas Company Meets with Upper Sandusky Group.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Sept. 22—O. J. Walker, representing the U. S. Gas and Fuel Co., appeared before the city council last night and presented the company's proposal for a franchise to furnish gas for this city. He asked for a 10-year franchise and agreed to furnish gas at the rate of 50 cents for the first 300 cubic feet and 35 cents for each 1,000 cubic feet thereafter. They proposed to purchase the present mains of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., or if unable to do this to construct their own mains through the city.

The source of their gas supply is the two wells now located on the O. J. Walker farm east of this city. One of these wells is constructed to produce over 1,000,000 cubic feet daily. It is estimated that this city uses more than 250,000 cubic feet of gas daily and that the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. now has $1,200 meters in operation in this city.

Franchise Expired

The franchise of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. expired last March and since that date they have been supplying the city with gas without a franchise and at the rate of the franchise that has already expired. Their present rate is one dollar for the first 500 cubic feet and 60 cents for each 1,000 cubic feet thereafter.

No definite action was taken on the offer of the U. S. Gas and Fuel Co. until the new rate franchise of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. has been presented or until the local gas company can satisfy council that they can furnish the city with an adequate supply of gas.

Milkman Starts Part-Time Jail Sentence Plan

By The Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 22—Today was unlike other days for L. A. Larson, local milkman under sentence for drunken driving, but he got his work done after all.

Larson was the first man sentenced under a new plan of Municipal Judge Clayton Parks. In certain cases due to economic conditions, sentences will be arranged so men with families may work.

"The court must go very slowly in these days of unemployment to impose undue hardships on families," the judge said.

WILL ABANDON AGENT'S OFFICE

Crawford County Extension Work To Be Discontinued; Funds Lacking.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Sept. 22—Crawford county commissioners today announced the abandonment of the office of county extension agent beginning Jan. 1, next year. The position is now held by J. E. Bradfute.

Uncertainty of the provision of funds for the office next year is given as the reason for the move.

No appropriation for financing the office is being included in the budget for next year, now being prepared. Abandonment of the office will mean the possible discontinuance of the 4-H clubs in the county, which have an enrollment of about 500 boys and girls.

The office was instituted in 1918. Last year's appropriation for financing the project was $2,200 and this year the appropriation was $1,700. Last year's funds were augmented by the sum of $1,900 from the state and federal offices and it was announced that the money would be available again this year.

CAPONE GUNMEN ARE CAUGHT IN SHOOTING

Attempted Chicago Assassination Fails; Police Nab Two as Suspects.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 22—Two of three alleged gunmen who fired at least five shots into the tonneau of an automobile, intending, police said, to kill an enemy near Michigan boulevard and Monroe streets, were held today. Crowds in the streets were thrown into confusion by the shooting.

The pair, both henchmen of Alphonse Capone, were identified as James "Red" Forsythe and Sam Hunt. They were captured in an areaway behind the Goodman theater. Both had thrown away their pistols.

"We just ran to get away from the shooting," Hunt explained. "We're business men."

Forsythe was at one time suspected of the killing of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter, who was slain only three blocks from yesterday's shooting. Once he was sentenced to serve a year for carrying a concealed weapon, but the supreme court reversed the decision. Hunt also has boasted of escaping punishment on pistol carrying charges.

As for the third man with Forsythe and Hunt, he rode away from the scene as quickly as did the intended victim.

LOUGHRAN CONTINUES COMEBACK ATTEMPT AGAINST DAYTONIAN

Master Boxer Takes on Joe Sekyra Tonight in Queensboro.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—The master boxer of all the heavyweights, Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, tunes up his fighting equipment against Joe Sekyra of Dayton, O., trial horse, in a 10 round bout at the Queensboro stadium tonight.

Counted out of serious contention after he was knocked out in three rounds by Jack Sharkey in September, 1929, Loughran has fought his way back to the top with a series of brilliant boxing exhibitions that have made him an idol to New York fightfollowers.

In his last three New York appearances, Loughran has gained decisions, with ludicrous ease, over Max Baer, Ernie Schaaf, and Victorio Campolo, the Argentine giant to whom Tommy conceded 50 pounds. Sandwiched in with these victories was another decisive triumph at Chicago, over Tuffy Griffiths.

The Philadelphian is an odds-on choice over Sekyra although the Ohio battler has been staging a comeback of his own in recent months.

SEEKS TO CORRECT GLARING FLAWS IN PRESIDENTS' TEAM

Harding Displays More Strength Than in 1930, but Still Lacks High Powered Offense.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

Driving his charges through a stiff scrimmage session, Coach D N. Bohyer yesterday started his Harding High school gridders on their last week of practice for the initial clash of the season Friday night at Columbus. The Presidents will open the 1931 season under the lights at the Ann street stadium of South High school, the first and as far as is known at present, the only engagement this year under the incandescents.

Harding, it must be stated, looked slightly better yesterday than at a corresponding period last season but there are yet a host of glaring faults to be ironed out before the Presidents can hope to cut much of a figure on the greensward. However, Bohyer is hopeful of having these faults corrected in time to enable the Red and Black to get somewhere in the North Central Ohio league race. Harding, it appears right now, has little chance to take the measure of Columbus South. Was the team at its best right now, this would be a difficult task and Harding is not yet at its best.

Probable Lineup

Although Bohyer has not yet named his starting lineup, the first eleven men seem fairly definitely settled now. However, any number of these eleven are apt to see themselves suddenly and completely ousted from a job unless they continue to show improvement for there are a lot of reserve men battling hard to obtain recognition.

Hagan and McDaniel seem almost assured of the end posts. Neither of these two have as yet shown themselves an Oosterbaan in the making but both look fairly capable. With some more practice either may turn into a star flanker.

Clay and Ling at tackles, Jevas and Martin at guards and Williams at the pivot post complete the forward wall. These boys are big with the exception of Jevas, who is not heavier than average. Jevas weighs around 155 but the others all weigh not less than 175. Martin tips the scales at over 200, Ling at about 190, Clay at near 185, and Williams at approximately 180.

Guthrie Gets Better

Don Lindsey, Dick Morgan, Bob Keller and Paul Hunt will probably start in the backfield, although Hunt may be replaced by Guthrie by the time the starting whistle blows. Hunt is seriously handicapped by a trick knee and it will be little less than a miracle if he is able to play anything like all the time. Guthrie is showing better every day and may turn into just what Harding has been praying for, a back who can smack the line with a resounding thump.

Harding will rely this year as last, more on a running and passing game than anything else. Bohyer does not have enough heavy and hard hitting backs to figure on consistent gains through the forward wall. There isn't enough beef. Hunt will probably do the kicking when he is in the game with Lindsey or Guthrie doing the booting at other times.

INJURIES COMMENCE INROADS ON LINEUPS OF STATE ELEVENS

Coaches Speed Up Drills, Although Hindered by Unseasonable Weather.

By The Associated Press

Approaching the season's first important football week-end, coaches of Ohio college gridiron squads sent charges through their paces at an increased tempo today.

Unseasonable weather, too warm for serious scrimmaging, lent a "light practice" aspect to yesterday's training. Wittenberg turned to night practice, both to escape the heat and to accustom the team to playing under the lights for Saturday's game with Georgetown.

Injuries began to make apparent inroads into starting lineups. Lowell Livingston of Marshall, Mich., only available veteran center at Ohio university, reported with an infected foot, while Ohio Wesleyan lost three regulars for the time being.

Robert King, promising center prospect, was put out for the season at Mount Union when a supposed sprain was found to be a broken ankle Sheehan, promising guard, was lost to John Carroll with a broken hand.

Herb Mayfarth, a star for Case in 1929, returned to the scientists' lineup to give added strength to an already veteran team. Over the fence at Western Reserve, a sophomore, Linz, was showing up his veteran competition for the quarterback job.

Ohio Northern was the exception of the Ohio gridiron rule yesterday, as the team engaged in merely a light workout in preparation for entraining Thursday for West Point, where it meets Army Saturday. Northern has developed speed and deception as its best defense and to offset an exceptionally light team this year.

Coach Butler at Oberlin is letting the veterans shift for themselves for a day or two while he scans sophomore material. Oberlin yesterday began light practice, the opening game with Kent State still two weeks away.

University of Cincinnati activities ran into the third week with continued stress on offense, while Xavier university was shaping up in a manner pleasing to Coach Joe Meyer.

32 QUALIFIED FOR WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 22—Thirty-two competitors whose scores ranged from 82 to 92 were qualified for today's first round of match play in the women's National golf championship.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, who is attempting her sixth triumph and fourth consecutive championship, was drawn against Miss Jean Armstrong of Chicago.

Mrs. Vare shot an 82 yesterday in the qualifying round to tie for the medal with Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., Canadian champion; Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Western champion, and Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit.

Attracting greatest attention today was the match between Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, twice a finalist in the National championship, and Mrs. Marion Turple Lake of New York, Southern and Long Island champion.

RED SOX CONTINUE TO SURPRISE LOOP

Collins Managed Club Vaults from Cellar to Fifth in American League.

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The Boston Red Sox and their new manager, Shano Collins, fast are proving themselves the surprise package of the American league. It looks now like they will finish in fifth place, which is exactly three places higher than their most optimistic supporters predicted.

If they do, Collins may regard his first season in the major as a howling success. He took over a team that consisted of a high class pitching staff and one very fine outfielder, Earl Webb, and in the closing month of the campaign he has a club that is playing some of the best ball in either league.

In vaulting from eighth place to fifth, the Sox have won 11 of their last 13 games. A double victory over St. Louis yesterday, 2 to 0 and 9 to 2, gave them five in a row, their longest winning streak of the year.

Yanks Lose Lead

The New York Yankees fell back into a tie with Washington for second place in the American when they dropped a 5 to 1 decision to Cleveland while the Senators were trimming the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 3. Their race for runner-up post looks like the big feature of the closing week.

Wes Ferrell turned in his 21st triumph as he held the Yankees to nine widely scattered hits while his support bunched eight off Charlie Ruffing.

Tapering off in preparation for the world series, the Athletics divided with Detroit, Winning one game, 3 to 2, and losing another 6 to 5. Jimmy FOXX hit a home run in each game, his second coming with the bases filled in the seventh inning of the nightcap and tying the score.

Tony Kauffman, St. Louis Cardinal relief pitcher supplied the high light in the day's National league program when he held Brooklyn hitless for 4 2-3 innings while the league champions came from behind to win in ten innings, 11 to 10

Reds Win Again

Cincinnati took their third straight from the floundering Boston Braves, 3 to 2, when they fell upon Selbold for four hits and two runs in the eighth inning.

The Phillies pecked away at four Pittsburgh pitchers to take their series opener, 6 to 4. Bill Harris, the Pirates' rookie sensation lasted only four innings. Jim Elliott held the Pirates well until the eighth when Ray Benge had to go in and smooth things over.

Rogers' Hornsby's pitching staff received a fine drubbing as the New York Giants made 27 hits good for a 15 to 7 win over the Cubs Hal Schumacher went the route for the winners, while five Chicago flingers had little success.

No Brotherly Love.

By The Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 22 — There is no great amount of brotherly feeling between Jack and Bill Riley. Northwestern tackle, Brother Jack is a regular for the third year, while brother Bill is a sophomore trying for a job. Coach Dick Hanley likes lots of competition among his men and has turned Bill loose after Jack's job. Jack weighs 215, and his little brother scales 224.

STREET QUIET AFTER FLURRY

Stocks Fluctuate and Share Prices Drop as Day Wanes.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 — Wall Street financial markets regained their composure today.

Stocks fluctuated uncertainly in quiet trading after a little flurry at the opening, and foreign bonds rebounded rather briskly, although domestic encountered some further liquidation. More foreign currencies were quoted by foreign exchange dealers, although business remained highly restricted.

Share prices fell back one to three points for many prominent issues at the start, recovered during the late morning, and recorded numerous gains of like extent. By early afternoon, however, most of this advance had been lost, and declines appeared here and there. Issues off a point or two included U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Stone and Webster, Southern Pacific, Eastman and Union Pacific.

The improvement in the Paris Bourse, and restricted resumption of trading at Amsterdam and Brussels were encouraging, together with announcement that the London market would reopen tomorrow.

Much of yesterday's nervousness was due to the fact that all foreign markets were closed with the exception of Paris. It was feared that a world-wide rush to liquidate might converge upon New York. On the contrary, however, international bankers state that there is some buying of American securities in progress for foreign account.

Several Wall Street bankers looked for constructive developments as a result of the British crisis, believing that it will expedite settlement of Franco-German differences, and lead the way to a revision of inter-governmental debts.

Some skepticism is expressed in Wall Street over the prospect of any more redistribution of monetary gold supplies in the near future. International bankers recognize that the lodging on three-fifths of the world's monetary gold supply in France and the United States embarrasses the rest of the world, and would welcome any workable remedy.

ENGLISH GAINS AID U. S. WHEAT

Prices Record Upturns on Report of Liverpool Advances: Corn Sags.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 22—Wheat averaged higher early today, influenced by sharp upturns in Liverpool quotations and by unfavorable harvest weather in Canada. It was confirmed that Czechoslovakia's wheat crop would be 1,000,000 tons below last year. Opening ¼ unchanged to ¾ cent higher, wheat afterward showed gains all around. Corn started ⅜ off to ⅜ up and later underwent a general sag.

Caution pervaded grain dealings today. Traders said new ventures were like sailing in uncharted seas. Some buying of wheat was based on comparative steadiness of securities and especially on advices that support was in evidence well above yesterday's lows. Bears emphasized reports that Russia was sending large shipments of wheat to Great Britain in an effort to anticipate tariff enactments or other import restrictions.

Liquidating sales of December corn contracts acted as weight on the market for the first time in a long while. Chicago receipts of corn were larger than for the corresponding day both of the week previous and a year ago.

Provisions displayed steadiness, despite downturns in hog values.

LARGE CUCUMBERS ARE EXHIBITED

Local Farmer Shows Biggest with 18-Inch Length.

Stories concerning unusual fruit and vegetables are becoming as common during the large harvest this year as the well-known "fish" stories. The most recent exhibit was by Frank L. Stanley of 296 Thew avenue of cucumbers grown on his farm also south east of Marion.

The largest cucumber weighed four pounds and one-half three with a circumference of 12½ inches and nearly 18 inches in length. It is of the "long-green" variety.

Stanley said that out of a vine of eight or nine bushels nearly 75 of the cucumbers would be of this size, the largest specimens ever grown on his farm.

Precaution from the vine and keep cultivated or rain only given by Stanley as the cause of the growth of the vegetables.

There may be a desirable change, accompanied by advancement, benefits and some financial emoluments and personal prestige. There may be minor anxieties in the personal relations and also some perplexing or vexatious incident in connection with writings or correspondence.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of fair progress and moderate prosperity, with a welcome change, some advancement and enhanced prestige or preferment. But there may be a trivial anxiety in the domestic, social or affectional contacts or a disagreeable episode in connection with writings. PATENT IS GRANTED ON SHOCK ABSORBER

Local Man Makes Plans for Manufacture of New Style Device

Samuel E. Lesher of 340 east Center street has been granted a patent on a new type of automobile shock absorber, according to word received from the office of the patent commissioner in Washington, D. C.

The device, which is of the friction type, is described as containing three features entirely new to this field of mechanics.

Plans for having the invention manufactured at Mt. Gilead are now being considered, Lesher said today. Four years ago the idea of the new shock absorber was conceived by Lesher and, after two years of experimenting, was submitted to the patent office in Washington.

Lesher made application for recognition of his exclusive right to six new ideas incorporated in his invention more than two years ago, his first drawings and application, having been submitted Oct. 22, 1929.

The invention is described as:

"A spindle is mounted with a rotating plate and having an annular flange encircling the spindle. The flange is notched in its free edge to provide a number of spaced 'legs.' The spindle is attached to a plate-like member, the latter having recesses for reception of the legs.' An annular flange is mounted on the plate-like member with a series of depressions having inclined surfaces, with a firm cam element mounted on the spindle and having projecting portions normally seated in the depressions. There is a 'resilient' means pressing the cam against the inclined surfaces, a stationary plate mounted on the spindle between the plate and the 'plate-like' member, friction disks interposed between the stationary plate, the circling plate and the plate-like member."

Hoover Confident Legion Will Drop Bonus Demands

President Believes Detroit Address Impressed Veterans with Necessity of Preventing Further Drains on Federal Treasury Surplus.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—President Hoover returned to Washington early today firm in the belief that he had impressed the American Legion convention at Detroit with the tremendous responsibility resting on America to pull the world out of the rough. The presidential train arrived in the capital at 7 a. m.

His flying visit to Detroit had been heralded far and wide as an effort aimed almost exclusively at a rising tide of agitation for a cash bonus and as his special train carried him westward Sunday night the impression was gained from official sources that the speech would be much broader in scope.

Issues Warning

It turned out to be far greater in significance as Mr. Hoover not only warned against further drains on the treasury at this time through additional veterans' relief and other legislation involving large appropriations, but served notice that either "loans or taxes beyond the very minimum necessities of the government will drain the resources of industry and commerce and in turn will increase unemployment."

Mr. Hoover's belief that his message was received in a sympathetic spirit was based on the warm reception given his statement that the legion could render a great service by opposing determinedly "additional demands upon the nation until we have won this war against world depression."

He said world stability depended upon a prosperous United States and expressed confidence this country "will lead the world in recovery."

Several stops were made in Ohio in the late afternoon for rear platform appearances. The President's strength was taxed by the flying trip and excessive heat and he retired early.

At Toledo he shook hands with a few persons, and at Willard, O., he gained a new insight into the sharp-witted youth of today.

Talks with Children

A group of school children gathered around his car and conducted a lively exchange with the President, unawed by his high office.

"Is school out?" Mr. Hoover asked of one tot, smiling, his face burned from the noon-day sun in Detroit, where he rode bareheaded for several miles.

"Yep," the young student replied unhesitatingly and added: "How about a speech?"

"I made my speech today," the President said.

"Aw shucks," the boy came back.

A little girl had other thoughts and asked where Mrs. Hoover was.

"She's back home," the President told her.

He then asked a boy, whose arm was bandaged, how he hurt it and was told "playing baseball."

"Those things will happen," he told the youngster.

Before his train pulled away, the chief executive had autographed several slips of paper, visiting cards and school books.

Family Welfare Society Gives Plans for Merger in Statement to Council

The following are excerpts from the text of communication presented to city council by members of the Family Welfare society last night when the proposed merger of the society with the city poor relief department was informally discussed.

"The Family Welfare Society is an organization formed in a large number of cities in this country under uniform charters. However, there are no national assessments or dues. Each organization is a unit in itself and spends all of its own funds.

"In an endeavor to centralize the welfare work in Marion, this Family Welfare society is organized. It is not our purpose to establish another agency, or to infringe on the privileges of other agencies already functioning, but rather to unite the efforts of all welfare organizations under one hand so that the greatest good may be done to the greatest number with the least expense and the least duplication.

"The work of the city poor relief department parallels the work of the Family Welfare society only just so far as it relates to direct material relief.

Trim of Work

"In order to best meet the situation which confronts the citizens of Marion, it is desirable that every effort be made to coordinate all agencies in order to best serve the public. About the first of December, 1930, a group of Marion citizens, who were interested in the betterment of conditions of our unemployed and unfortunate residents, organized a branch of the Family Welfare society and have functioned as such up to the present time. During the past year this organization dispensed material relief to 287 families, and actually spent for food and fuel $13,327.82 in seven months. In addition to this, a branch of the organization known as the commissary collected, furnigated, repaired and distributed clothing to over 3,000 individuals, having an estimated new replacement value of over $50,000. Of this material, about $2,000 worth consisting largely of children's clothing, mostly stockings and underwear was purchased new at wholesale.

"In the dispensing of this tremendous amount of material, no charge was made to any of those receiving help and the entire operating cost was absorbed by the Family Welfare society. The commissary also operated a shoe repairing department which saved the school board substantial sums of money by repairing school children's shoes. They also reclaimed several thousand pairs of shoes which had been donated by citizens, and made a practice of repairing any shoes brought to them while the customer waited. The school board helped to some extent by buying certain materials necessary for doing this class of work, but paid no fee for any of the work done for them.

Trained Worker in Charge

"Although this is a new organization, all of its work was handled in a systematic way with complete records of all families involved, showing in each and every case the names of the family heads, children, residence, work record and family history and also a detailed account of all assistance given. This work has been up to the present time in charge of one trained worker, who donates the use of an automobile, and one office girl together with a score of volunteer workers who have been willing to give of their time and effort under the direction of a trained worker to help this worthy cause. Several organizations have cooperated financially with the Family Welfare society contributing several thousand dollars during the last year and have signified their intention to again cooperate financially during the coming winter.

"At the same time that the Family Welfare society was working, the city poor relief department was doing direct relief work and handled somewhat more than half of the families which required relief during the year in about the proportion of 55-45 per cent. Due to the fact that there was such a volume of work to be done, it was impossible for the city poor relief officer to comply with the provisions of the law which specifically states that in no case shall relief be given without investigation as to the financial resources of the applicant. This condition also resulted in the fact that no adequate records were kept which is a very serious state of affairs where such sums of money are being given away. It is far more important to investigate these cases before the money is given away than to check up afterwards.

Offers Services

"After very carefully considering the conditions as they now exist, the Family Welfare society came before the council of the city of Marion and asked that a levy of one mill be placed on the ballot at the coming election to provide funds for carrying on the poor relief work for the coming winter with the further understanding that they as an organization and as individuals would do all in their power to see that this tax levy was given favorable support by the citizens of Marion.

"They also wish to offer the services of the Family Welfare society to the city administration without charge in order that they may assist in the proper investigation of cases and the distribution of such funds as are available for the work in hand. Specifically, what the Family Welfare society offers the city is the services of a trained welfare worker, such volunteers as are available, a clerk to keep all records and the support of the entire membership of their organization, all without cost to the city. To give an idea of what we are offering on the basis of last year's records 7,000 interviews were held with people seeking relief, of which 1,000 were made at the residence of the applicant.

"This will include also the commissary for the collection and distribution of clothing which will undoubtedly save the city from purchasing clothing at a possible cost, if equal to last year, many thousands of dollars, and the collecting and distributing of such food stuffs as may be donated by the citizens of Marion and Marion county.

"This entire proposition has been given careful investigation by the officers of the Family Welfare society and there is no valid reason why their operating force cannot cooperate to the fullest degree with the city poor relief officer.

"We believe that the criticism of the Family Welfare society has been prompted by lack of accurate information on the part of many people most of whom have contributed little or nothing to its support. This criticism is expected and is one of the burdens which those volunteering their services in relief work must assume."

TAX GROUP HEADS OPPOSED TO MERGER

both city and county officials and the staggering of city jobs wherever possible He said he had been misquoted in a recent talk and while he had not said he was in favor of making every able bodied man work for any grocery orders he might receive from the city, he did say they should be given the opportunity to work for them

He pointed to charges made by Dr Smith of overtime in the city service department declaring that city work, wherever it is possible should be staggered in order that as many men could be given work as possible

He also said the home owner who was struggling along always on the verge of losing all he had put into his property, deserved as much consideration as the unfortunate who needed food "I am making an appeal for the property owner who is struggling along on the ragged edge constantly threatened with the loss of everything because of his inability to pay his taxes "

Blames Real Estate Men

Much of the city's debt was laid at the doors of the real estate men by C E Merkel president of council "It was the constant fighting of real estate men to get improvements in their new sub-divisions and on streets on which they had property to sell that has gotten the city into such debt He pointed to north Greenwood street which he said cost the city between $35 000 and $40 000 more than its share because of the failure of property to meet the valuation

W T Jones and Schell both objected to this stand declaring that at the time the improvements were asked for everybody was working and conditions were good

W G Slack councilman also came to the defense of the city He pointed to the repaving of Center street and the resurfacing of Main street which he said had put the city approximately $100 000 in debt and to the white way lighting system which he said had added between $5 000 and $10 000 a year to the city's light bill All of these improvements he said were demanded by the very ones who were now criticizing the city for the heavy overhead

Declaring the matter of reducing the expenses of the city was largely a matter of the attitude of council Schell brought the discussion back to the matter of salary reduction "If you were in business and found you were going behind, what you would do?" he demanded of President Merkel "You would cut down your expenses, of course" President Merkel admitted he probably would

Does Not Want Control

The matter of combining the two relief departments was brought back to the attention of the council by Frank Glosser of the Welfare society who said it was not the purpose of the organization, as had been intimated, to get control of the relief money, but to merely cooperate with the city in carrying on the work this winter "We have a trained investigator who will see to it that only the deserving ones are given aid and a clerk who will keep an accurate record of how and where the money is paid," Glosser told council All of this he said, would be turned over to the city without cost.

Walker also gave this as the reason for the desire of the Welfare society to unite with the city relief department Our main desire is to help," he said, "and if any member of council or any citizen has a better idea for carrying out the relief work this winter, we would be glad to hear it."

On Convention Program

Resolutions on prohibition, including some proposing a stand for modifications and others asking a nation wide referendum, were in the hands of the resolutions committee, which was called to meet tonight. As a result of President Hoover's address yesterday, in which he discussed the condition of the national treasury, and of speeches by other leaders, including the national commander, Ralph T O Neil, officials today agreed that action for further payments on the veterans' bonus is extremely unlikely A protest against the present interest rate of 4½ per cent on bonus loans had strong support, however, including that of Commander O'Neil

Interest was centered more strongly today on the possibilities of the prohibition question an issue which heretofore has been kept off the floor of legion conventions

Soup Kitchen, Dormitory Plan of Salvation Army

A soup kitchen, such as has been established in larger cities, may become a part of the plan for the care of the unemployed the coming winter, if plans now being considered by Captain Hunter of the Salvation Army, materialize.

While nothing definite has yet been decided, the plan now under consideration by the Salvation Army captain, would provide for the installation of a soup kitchen on the second floor of the army building on north State street.

The establishing of the kitchen is a part of a general plan by Captain Hunter to broaden the work of the Army this winter. Another plan, and one which is now being worked out, is to equip a dormitory in the headquarters building.

Help has been asked of various local organizations in equipping this room and thus far two have volunteered to help. Bird McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion will supply one double deck bunk completely equipped, while the Kiwanis club has donated 60 bed sheets.

A room now being used partly as a dormitory will be renovated and equipped with double deck sanitary bunks. Each bunk will be supplied with clean bed clothing, and to assure cleanliness, each applicant for a night's lodging will be given clean night clothing, a towel and a bar of soap. He will be required to take a bath and his clothing will be placed in a delouser to remove any vermin.

In the morning he will be given a breakfast of hot soup and bread and sent on his way.

The establishing of the proposed soup kitchen, Captain Hunter said, is the most the army can do toward feeding the hungry men. "We have no money with which to buy meals for the unfortunates who apply to me each day for something to eat, and the kitchen would, in a measure, solve this distressing problem."

LISTERINE
cleans the scalp
"sets" a wave
checks
DANDRUFF

Use It Once A Week

WHENEVER you wash your hair—and most people do it once a week—douse full strength Listerine on the scalp either before or after the rinse. Then massage the scalp and hair vigorously for several minutes.

You will be simply delighted by the wonderful feeling of cleanness and exhilaration that follows this refreshing treatment.

Moreover, it is unquestionably one of the best treatments for loose dandruff—for preventing it, and for overcoming it once it has started. Many hundreds of women have told us that since making Listerine a part of the weekly shampoo, their scalp feels better, their hair looks more attractive, and they are never troubled with loose dandruff. Of course, if dandruff does get a start, it will be necessary to repeat the Listerine treatment systematically for several days, using a light olive oil in conjunction with it if the scalp and hair are excessively dry.

Listerine removes and dissolves the dandruff particles and heals and soothes the scalp. Also, if infection is present—and most dermatologists define dandruff as a germ infection—Listerine immediately combats it.

Incidentally after a shampoo when the hair is unruly there is nothing like Listerine to make it set nicely. The same applies to a finger wave.

Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Missouri.

Do you have to be told?

Before any social engagement rinse the mouth with Listerine. Then you automatically end Halitosis (unpleasant breath) the one unforgivable social fault.

GERMAN TEACHER ADDED TO STAFF

By International News Service.

ATHENS, O., Sept. 22.—The World war feeling against the German language is swiftly disappearing, it is believed at Ohio university.

Increased popularity of the language has caused officials to add a third member to the German faculty.

E. H. Mueller, a native of Germany who came here seven years ago, is the new member of the German faculty.

His employment was necessary, it was stated, to take care of the increased enrollment in German classes at the university.

CIVIC ORGANIZATION PURPOSE IS DEFINED

Executive of Chamber of Commerce Issues Statement on Eve of Drive.

As plans for an intensive membership drive of the Marion chamber of commerce neared completion today, W. D. Brown, executive vice president, issued a statement defining its purpose and calling on Marion residents generally to consider the importance and significance of the organization and its activities.

The intensive drive will begin Thursday when committees make a canvass of the uptown section. At the conclusion of the intensive drive this week, plans will be made for a general membership drive in October.

Brown's statement follows:

"The question at some time may have been asked of you: 'Why the chamber of commerce?' or 'For what purpose does it exist in the community?' It is deserving of a thoughtful and serious answer such as follows: 'The Marion chamber of commerce as well as all commercial organizations in thousands of cities of the United States is organized to forward those public interests, civic, commercial and industrial, which are neglected because everybody's business is nobody's business.

"The sole object of all the activities and acts of the chamber of commerce is the public good. As a community organization, it represents a cross-section of community life as does no other. It possesses all the machinery with which to accomplish the worth-while things for community life, and only requires the co-operative man-power of the community to make it successful. In these times of keen competition between communities for existence, it requires the utmost cooperation of the citizens of each community to hold its place in the forward advance of community life.

"Membership in the chamber of commerce shows your sympathy with an organized effort to better the city, and life within it. A man in business is broader and more successful, when he has a more active interest in the affairs of the community in which he lives and makes a living. The sense of satisfaction, which you enjoy in living in your home town, is directly proportionate with the amount of interest you manifest in promoting its well-being."

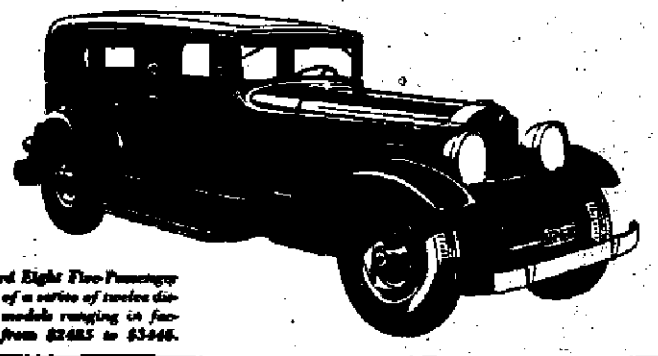
Have you ridden in the NEW PACKARD EIGHT Sedan?



The Packard Eight Five-Passenger Sedan, one of a series of twelve distinguished models ranging in factory price from $2485 to $3446.

In the new Packard Eight Sedan—priced at $2485 at the factory—you are offered motor car luxury that actually has never before existed. If you have not yet driven this distinguished new Packard enclosed car for five—if you have not ridden in it as a passenger—it will be difficult to give you a thorough appreciation of its remarkable performance, its supreme comfort. So why not arrange for a demonstration trip?

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

We want to show you the new and exclusive Packard Ride Control, which permits you to adjust the hydraulic shock absorbers from the dash. Then we want to demonstrate the more powerful, smoother, quieter Packard Straight-Eight engine that is now "floated" on rubber; the new four-speed, synchro-mesh transmission, which permits effortless, noiseless gear shifting.

We want to point out the longer wheelbase, the wider tread, the lower, roomier body with its complete insulation against sound and temperature—explain what these advanced features mean to Packard owners.

In short, we want to give you an entirely new conception of motoring luxury—which can be yours at a cost no greater than you have undoubtedly been paying for a car of far less distinction. If you are paying for a Packard why not own one—why not have the car of tomorrow rather than any car of yesterday?

The President in Detroit.

President Hoover rang the tocsin for federal economy in his speech before the American Legion convention. It is a welcome sound in this nation, which seems to support the policy that governmental expenditures must be constantly increasing.

It required courage for the President to go before the convention and outline a course of action precluding passage of legislation to give the veterans full and immediate payment of their adjusted service certificates.

It required courage to make a declaration that increases in the taxes of the wealthy can not be counted on to fill the treasury; that small taxpayers will be burdened further, unless drastic curtailment of expenditures is accomplished.

It did not require courage, however, for the President to call on former soldiers for help in carrying out an economy program. The American legion and other veterans' organizations are composed of proved patriots. If they can be convinced that the principles of the President or any other leader are sound, they can be depended upon to help.

President Hoover's speech, together with the fact that he went to Detroit to make it in person, will have a decidedly favorable reception. He stands squarely for federal economy, and he has convinced the public of his entire sincerity. If the follow-up is as good as the beginning, Mr. Hoover's presidential stature will increase.

The Gerard View of Germany.

"The German nation apparently is making bankruptcy pay."

In view of all that has appeared in print during the last sixty days regarding economic conditions in Germany, this utterance by James W. Gerard, made in a statement issued by him on his return from Europe last week, must have carried an element of surprise to newspaper readers, especially those who stopped to realize that the former United States ambassador to Germany, being a man of education, is not without appreciation of the distinction between the word, apparently, and the word, seemingly. In other words, that he did not speak of what seemed to be the situation, but rather of a situation which is apparent.

But whatever the degree of surprise occasioned by the excerpts from the Gerard statement carried by the press associations, the full text of the statement offers ground for far greater surprise for in criticizing the readiness with which financiers throughout this country have been loaning hundreds of millions of dollars to Germany "and overlooking the imperative need at home," he charged that Germany needs no assistance and that a large percentage of the loans she has received from the United States immediately was loaned to Russia. Since the conclusion of the Versailles treaty, he stated, Germany has paid out 10,000,000,000 marks in reparations and received through public and private loans 18,000,000,000 marks and it is his conclusion that it is high time American financiers started helping their own country and stop lending money to Germany.

"Germany is spending too much money building stadiums and swimming pools," to quote from the Gerard statement, "which is a waste in view of present economic conditions. Some money is devoted to housing, but the greater portion is used for luxury equipment. Germany is also lending a great deal of money to Russia. If we're going to do business with Russia, let's do it directly and not through Germany. Germany has arranged to give soviet Russia millions of dollars of credit to purchase commodities in Germany."

The former ambassador scoffed at the view of Professor William R. Shepherd, of Columbia university, who returned from Europe the day before, that the possibility of a Nationalist dictatorship was imminent in Germany. "There is a solid body of citizens in Germany," he said, "who will rise en masse against a dictatorship either by the Nationalist or Communist party," and he paid tribute to this great body of German-minded people, and, by inference at least, expressed regret that there were not fewer European-minded and more American-minded people, particularly financiers, here in the United States.

In a rather foreboding conclusion, Mr. Gerard referred to the mocking from all sources when he was quoted, following an interview with President Hoover, November 10 of last year, with saying that within eighteen months the people who had money in German bonds would never get it back. "I am now thinking seriously," he says, "of sending telegrams to all the people who were doing the hooting in those days."

The former ambassador to Germany may be unduly pessimistic. He may be as far astide the mark one way as the European minded of our population may be the other, but there is this to be said for his view, his residence in Germany as the representative of the then president should have given him an insight into the mass German mind and the German character and their strength and their weakness which one not possessed of his former advantages could hardly possess.

The "vets" are said to be getting a lot of satisfaction out of the White House inquiry regarding brewing data, despite the White House announcement that it was made to accommodate seekers after information and not for White House use. It's evident that the "vets" are able to build up an awful amount of hope on an awfully slight foundation.

Great Britain's Second Step.

Great Britain continues to hold the stage of important international affairs with its program to save the value of the pound sterling. Last week Chancellor Snowden balanced the national budget. This week the gold standard is suspended temporarily. The passive mutiny of British sailors protesting pay cuts last week resulted in a series of events causing large withdrawals of funds from the London market. English balances, indispensable to trade, were being withdrawn. The gold reserve held by the Bank of England was dwindling rapidly, so there was nothing to do but prevent it from getting too small by suspending a sub-section of the gold standard act, which required the bank to sell gold at a fixed price.

J. P. Morgan, whose opinion Americans respect, regards this action by Great Britain as "hopeful." He thinks it is incidental to the ultimate British purpose of restoring trade, a thing which obviously is impossible so long as the pound sterling is under suspicion. Suspension of gold payments, rather than reflecting discredit on the stability of the pound, reflects the government's firm purpose to safeguard that stability by maintaining an adequate gold reserve.

The epidemic of infantile paralysis in New York City is in some quarters being attributed to the sharks known to be disease carriers, which are infesting the water approaches to the city in most unusual numbers this year. No doubt sharks are responsible for many of New York's troubles, but this is the first time we have come upon any inclination to credit any of them to the funny variety.

Defending the refusal of Rev. Clyde Macintosh, of the Yale divinity school, to take the prescribed oath in order that he may gain citizenship in this country, a memorial signed by many clergymen and addressed to the "President and the congress of the United States" questions the arms-bearing test of citizenship. Our good ecclesiastical friends seem to have forgotten that our laws were made for the protection of this country and citizens of this country and not for the ideas or convenience of aliens.

SAFETY FIRST IN THESE RETRENCHMENT DAYS.

Editorial Opinion.

MASS INSURANCE NO REMEDY.

Automobile liability insurance is compulsory in Massachusetts, with rates differing according to the district, and these new schedules, based on accidence, density of population, and number of motor cars, have just been promulgated. Immediately a hullabaloo has been started against the system as well as the higher rates.

This hullabaloo is explained by the Boston Transcript in terms that should interest citizens of other states who think there is a remedy for casualties in this system. The Transcript calls the law an absurdity, for these reasons:

"Enacted with good purpose, it is wrong in basis and preposterous in practice. To assure indemnity for that comparatively small number of persons who meet death or total disability at the hands of financially irresponsible car owners, this statute brings about the annual expenditure of millions or dollars for every finger scratch, nervous upset and mewling fraud that happens or can be contrived along the crowded streets, highways and byways of all Massachusetts. The law accomplishes one decent purpose at immensely excessive expense. It has not reduced accidents. Instead, it has been accompanied by a heavy increase of even fatal smashups, because, while it has in no way changed the psychology of the responsible driver who used to keep themselves privately insured at much lower rates, it has given boorish and irresponsible drivers a confident feeling that no matter how much damage they cause, their compulsory policies will discharge them scot free."

The problem of better safety enforcement continues, then, a puzzle for the states. Massachusetts has learned there is no improvement through compulsory insurance; other states have shunned an enactment. The genius who can find a method of traffic control that will take selfishness out of the individual and make this a Utopia of cars, caution and courtesy, is yet to arise. Until his advent, we shall have to go on aiming at improving the human race by units instead of in the mass.—Minneapolis Journal.

EQUALITY, COMRADES!

The Moscow correspondent of the Chicago Daily News presents this interesting picture of comradely equality in the Soviet paradise:

"In contrast with the rare and shabby taxis and the plain proletariat hanging like bunches of grapes on the steps of every street car, are the sleek, high-powered limousines of the new Kremlin royalty, the high Communist party and the governmental officials who live within those walls.

"A tight board fence has been put across the two entrances of Alexandrovsky park, the largest recreation center of the city, preventing the laboring masses from entering the park and permitting the big automobiles of the new proletarian rulers with their wives, children and pleasure-seeking friends to speed in and of of Borovitskaya gate of the Kremlin at fifty miles an hour."

Ah, there is nothing like equality! Nothing quite like proletarian equality. It is to this blessed estate that so many American pulpiteers and propagandists are pointing to the laboring men and women of America.

Fortunately, the American Federation of Labor and all true friends of the American republic and its system of democracy, are aware of the falseness of the proletarian rule, which in actuality rests upon the bayonets of a well equipped and well-fed soldiery, and that psychology which ever has enabled tyrants of whatever name to control the many by the rule of the few.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Friday, September 22.

Marion friends received cards announcing the marriage at Canton, Illinois, September 20, of Miss Florence Reid Grim, a former resident of the city, and Mr. George W. Lane.

The Star reported the marriage, the afternoon before, of Miss Roma A. Welch and Mr. Arthur C. Wiley, both of Motral, by Rev. Mr. Ebans.

Marion people were being assured that the county fair would be "bigger and better than ever before."

Business was heavy on the railroads, many local workers being compelled to work extra time.

Miss Genoia H. Phelps and Mr. Dwight Philbans were married by Rev. George M. Rourke.

The Marion County Telephone company purchased the Samuel Kramer property on south Main street for $9,000, planning to erect thereon a fine plant.

Disturbance in Brain.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the most common diseases of mankind is gastric ulcer. Apparently this disease has increased as a result of our modern methods of living.

In the recent published statement, an eminent brain surgeon states that stomach ulcers are caused by a disturbance in a certain portion of the brain. He believes that the "diencephalon," the part of the brain that controls our emotions, has much to do with the stomach. He considers it probable that irritation here may be directly responsible for the formation of gastric ulcers.

This announcement is of great interest. This is particularly true because of the fact that many, many theories have been advanced as to the cause of this disease. One by one these have been abandoned.

Ulcer of the stomach, which is the same as "gastric ulcer," or as the doctors call it, "peptic ulcer," has been recognized for many centuries. For years it was believed the disease was due to a blocking of the blood vessels supplying a portion of the stomach. Under these circumstances, it was supposed the gastric juice would destroy any portion of the stomach having lowered vitality.

It has been proposed, too, that sudden changes in the body temperature, from eating extremely cold or hot foods, might be a factor. While such practices are bad, it is doubtful if they would cause ulcer.

Seamstresses, domestic servants, saddlers, carpenters, shoemakers and salesgirls appear to have a particular tendency to this disease. The nature of their occupation has had its effect in placing pressure on the stomach region and perhaps interfering with free circulation.

There is no doubt that these factors, together with mental anxiety, have ill effects upon health.

In certain cases, alcoholism, or specific diseases, are definite factors in causing stomach ulcer. But a really definite cause has never been found.

The disease sometimes follows acute infections. It is one of the complications of severe burns involving large surface of the body. In such cases, it is believed the ulcer follows the absorption of "toxins" or poisons.

At one time it was believed smoking caused this condition. This is very doubtful although it is noted that the disease appears to be more common in smokers than in non-smokers.

There is such uncertainty about stomach ulcer that it is to be hoped the new theory of cause may prove conclusive. Anyhow it is interesting.

1. Q—Is buttermilk fattening?
2—What diet is indicated in the case of hay fever?

A—No, since the butter fat has been removed.

2—There is no specific diet indicated. Eat of a well balanced diet and be sure to keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

ANXIOUS. Q—What causes heart trouble?
2—Has dancing any ill effect on the heart?

A—There are many different causes. An examination is necessary.
2—Not if heart is normal.

L.E.M. Q—Are boiled onions reducing?
2—Would it be advisable to take epsom salts every morning in order to reduce? The patient is nursing a baby—would it be harmful under these circumstances?

A—No.
2—No. Salts are apt to be very weakening and debilitating to the system, if taken indiscriminately. It would be unwise to attempt any drastic reduction in weight while nursing a baby. Cutting down on sugars and starches and keeping the system clear should be generally helpful in this case. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

ANXIOUS. Q—Is skipping the rope a good exercise? I work in an office and get very little exercise.
2—What will help a flat chest?

A—Yes.
2—Exercise and deep breathing should prove healthful in this case. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

S.L. Q—How can I reduce?

A—Eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Get regular systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with the regular exercise will work wonders in most cases.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Galvani—Discoverer.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The Italian scientist, Galvani, who has given his name to the formation of certain indispensible words in the English language and in many other languages, is acknowledged to be the discoverer of animal magnetism. His great discovery, which he himself did not understand, set the world agog and caused thousands of discussions and controversies in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. A magnificent statue of him was erected at Bologna in 1879.

Luigi Galvani was born at Bologna, Italy, on September 9, 1737. It was his original intention to become a monk, and he studied theology with the utmost intensity. His father dissuaded him from entering a monastery by pointing out the great service he could render to suffering humanity as a physician. Studying medicine with the same zeal he had formerly displayed in the study of theology, he soon achieved the reputation of being one of the most brilliant surgeons of his time. At the age of twenty-five, by a treatise on the formation of bones, he won the position of professor of anatomy in the University of Bologna.

Galvani's discovery of the force, called after him galvanism, was the result of a singular accident, twenty-four years later. He had some dead skinned frogs in his laboratory, which had been got for his sick wife. A fine knife rested upon one of the frogs. During his absence from the room, his wife, who had entered, was amazed to see the limbs of one of the frogs move in a convulsive manner. It was a miracle—the dead frog had come to life! She carefully examined the surrounding objects, and concluded that the muscular twitching of the frog's legs was caused by the current from an electric machine resting on the table. Galvani supported her conclusion by showing that the frog's legs twitched on contact with the knife only when the current of electricity was generated in the machine. Galvani further tested the matter with a copper skewer through the frog, laid upon an iron railing. Whenever the copper touched the iron, the frog's legs would twitch.

Galvani concluded that there was some vital fluid or electric charge in all animals, secreted by the brain and distributed by the nervous system to the body. Eventually Volta gave the correct explanation that a crude sort of electric battery was formed by the copper and iron and moist animal tissue. Galvani discovered a new source of energy. He died on December 4, 1798. — Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Two Early Columbus Armstrongs.

BY J. R. GALBRAITH.

Two men, both named Armstrong, but apparently unrelated, who figured prominently in the early history of Columbus, were brought to this vicinity as prisoners in the hands of the Wyandot Indians, who had a town where the present Ohio penitentiary now stands. Both of them were taken in early childhood, and became so well satisfied with the Indian life that they had to be persuaded to return to civilization.

One of them, Jeremiah, was taken in western Pennsylvania and brought directly to Columbus. A brother who heard he was living with the Indians hunted him out and almost forced him to return to his old home in Pennsylvania. He returned almost at once to the scene of his life with the Indians and cast his lot with the first settlers here.

The list of members of the first council of the borough of Columbus contains his name, and it is known that he owned a High street lot on which he erected a building and kept a hotel which he gave the appropriate name of the Christopher Columbus hotel. The name was later changed to "The Red Lion Tavern." His name disappears from the town records before the date of the new charter in 1834. He had probably died.

The other Armstrong, Robert, was captured in Virginia nearly opposite Blennerhassett island. He was an orphan and bound out to a trader, who was hunting with him when the Indians fell upon them, killing his master, and carried Robert away into captivity. He lived with his captors for many years, and is said to have become "a very good Indian."

The name of Robert Armstrong appears in the list of Columbus borough councilmen too, but it is not certain that it was the one-time captive, for Howe says of him that he never left the Indians, married an Indian woman and had two sons, both of whom were with the Wyandots when the remnant of the tribe was removed to a new reservation beyond the Mississippi in 1842. The boys were educated and one of them was admitted to the bar.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Sept. 22.—Some courageous examples of "putting on a front" have slipped out of the depression along with smashing loyalty among employes. Especially has this been true of the so-called servant class.

On West Forty-Third street there is a small shopkeeper whose cashier and two clerks have not received a cent in salary for fourteen months. They have lived on their small savings. In this way the owner has been able to pay the rent and light bill and the business has been saved.

A fairly well-known theatrical man related to friends at the Lambs the other day that he had only been able to avoid bankruptcy through loans of his valet, who not only remained a faithful employe, but sold a piece of property in the Bronx to tide him over.

I know a man whose life savings were swept away by trusting a bank's advice in investments and whose position of $30,000 a year went with it. He now lives in a cheap rooming-house in Staten Island. He keeps up contacts with old friends who never heard him whine. Early every morning he cries papers at a ferry entrance.

There is a manufacturer in Westchester who went to the wall seven months ago. The next morning he told the staff of servants at his country home of his plight. They pooled life savings to stave off foreclosure on his house and have remained on the job, without salary, since.

Social workers found an astonishing army of former stenographers, secretaries and other office workers whose plight is made doubly difficult to alleviate because they will not accept anything smacking of charity. Any number are reported eating one meal a day only.

To my notion the bravest spirit of all is a song writer whose tunes were whistled everywhere four years ago and then a sudden eclipse. He is the reception clerk, greeting other ambitious lyricists at a Broadway publishing house which once published his songs.

Speaking of eclipses, there is perhaps no figure in the public eye in New York who accomplished such a complete fadeout as the bespatted Grover Whalen. Two years ago he overshadowed even Mayor Walker, who appointed him, in public interest. He was in news pictures daily, news reels weekly and the topic of a thousand stage, comic weekly and comic strip jests.

The Tenderloin has not forgotten the cowardly shooting of children by gangsters. It has resulted in a revulsion among even flinty denizens of the Tenderloin. I am told that in a Forty-Seventh street coffee pot the other evening a dice player passed a stool occupied by one of the booze racketeers and sneered: "Hello yellow! Suppose you are all hooked to sneak up on a few baby buggies?" The gangster sat stiff and white, but said nothing. When he finally got up to go his tormentor called out: "All the nurses should be asleep by this time. Get working, hero."

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 22 — In front of one of Georgetown's historic mansions, almost any morning when congress is in session, a youthful chap of athletic build may be seen mounting a bicycle.

Few recognize him as he pedals down the streets of Washington's old and exclusive suburb toward capitol hill.

Probably not many would believe were they told that the rider is a member of congress—that he is the sole representative in the house of a western state—that he is a man of wealth and social position.

But Lewis "Lew" Douglas, of Arizona, is all these things.

He rides his bicycle to work because he likes that form of exercise. It's several miles from Georgetown to the capitol, and a man who bikes it is assured of a good workout.

Douglas, who observed his thirty-seventh birthday in July, despite his comparative youth has had a life of varied activity. Scion of a famous family of mine owners, operators and bankers, he himself has been a student, a soldier, a farmer, a miner, a state legislator and a congressman.

Arizona sent him to Washington for the first time to represent the state at large in the seventy-first congress. His constituents must have been pleased with his work, because he had no opposition for reelection either in the primary or the general election.

In his native state, especially in his home town of Bisbee, they call Douglas "Arizona's fighting congressman." Probably it's because General Pershing cited him for bravery in the Argonne offensive and he was decorated by the king of the Belgians during the World war.

More likely, however, it's because of his unrelenting fight in congress against the construction of Boulder dam. From the first he has fought this project vigorously.

An able and forceful speaker, he draws the attention of colleagues on the floor of the house whether he be airing his views on Boulder dam or making an appeal in behalf of the Indians.

He taught history at Amherst for a while after the war, but soon returned to Arizona. Mining—the occupation of the family—reclaimed him. In 1921, he went back to Arizona where he engaged in mining in the Aravaypai district.

Two years later he moved to Phoenix, where he raised citrus fruits. It was in the same year that he entered politics, being elected to the state legislature.

In 1928 he entered the race for congress and defeated his Republican opponent with an overwhelming majority.

OHIO GASOLINE TAX RECEIPTS DECREASE

1931 Revenue Expected To Show Drop of Over $250,000.

By International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29.—Ohio's gasoline tax receipts probably will fall off from $350,000 to $400,000 this year, it is believed here.

An inspection of the records of State Auditor Joseph Tracy showed that gasoline tax collections from the first of this year until Aug. 1 aggregated $24,430,926.98, compared with $24,708,970.35 during the same period last year. These figures reveal a loss of $275,043.47 in collection during the first eight months of this year.

This decline was attributed to the industrial depression with its attendant falling-off in the mileage registered this year by autoists over Ohio's highways and streets.

The total amount of gasoline taxes distributed by the state auditor this year to the state highway department and to the counties, cities, villages and townships fell off $281,151.04 over the amount thus distributed during the first eight months last year. Up to Aug. 1 this year, Auditor Tracy distributing $23,174,232.14 as against $23,455,383.18 during the first eight months last year.

The discrepancy between the amount of taxes collected and the total amount distributed is due to the fact that certain refunds were made to various corporations, firms and individuals after they paid the tax. Up to Aug. 1, the refunds this year totaled $1,256,694.74, as against refunds aggregating $1,250,587.1 17 last year.

Distributions made this year were as follows: State highway department, $14,461,385.07, of which $9,269,692.84 went into the construction and reconstruction fund and $5,214,208.23 into the maintenance and repair fund; cities and villages, $4,055,490.56; counties, $3,676,136.89; townships, $1,156,712.66.

GETS AWARD FOR ATTACK BY CAT

By International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29.—Injuries she received in a conflict with a cat recently won compensation for a Youngstown girl from the state industrial commission.

Veronica Bobac, 17, was hired by Leo J. Witt, an electrician, to answer the phone in his home for an afternoon for which she was to receive one dollar.

Witt said he warned the girl not to play with the cat and the girl said the cat attacked her. The reviewer for the commission held that the ill-natured animal owned by the employer was a risk.

Additions to the corps of inspectors, recently authorized, are expected to increase Kansas cigaret tax revenues $300,000 yearly.

Former Agosta Resident Marries in Toledo

Miss Nita LaVon Carey, formerly of Agosta, was married to William E. Greiner in a pretty ceremony yesterday afternoon at 8:30 o'clock in the Clark Street M. E. church in Toledo. Rev. J. L. Peck, pastor, officiated at the double ring service.

Miss Charlotte Wilson of Toledo and Morenci, Mich., was maid of honor. Warner Blekkola of Ann Arbor, Mich., was best man. Baskets of yellow gladioli and palms on either side of the altar, flanked by candelabra holding lighted yellow candles and lighted tapers on the walls, decorated the church.

While the guests assembled, Mrs Helen Cliff Haines, organist, played "Moonlight Sonata" by Beethoven. As the bride entered, unattended, Mrs. Haines played the "Wedding March" from Wagner's "Lohengrin." "Wedding March", from "Tannhauser" was played as the recessional.

The bride wore a gown of Dove blue chiffon of Empire period design with a cape jacket, and her only ornament was a crystal pendant, a gift of the bridegroom. Her hat was of pink velvet in Empire style, and she wore pink slippers. Her bouquet was a shower of pink tea roses with baby breath.

Miss Wilson was in yellow chiffon, fashioned with a short jacket, with which she wore a blue hat and slippers and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses tied with blue chiffon.

Robert Greiner and Denton Haines were ushers.

A wedding supper was served at the country home of Mr. and Mrs William G. Greiner, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom. For traveling the bride wore a costume of dark red wool crepe trimmed in black fur and with matching accessories. After a motor trip through Michigan and southern Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Greiner will be at home after Sept. 28 at 806 McKinley avenue, in Ann Arbor, Mich.

There was something so irresistible in his voice and eyes that I laughed aloud.

"Well" I admitted, "I don't know what I might do if you came in wanting to know about your missing laundry just as I was working up to a grand climax, but I do know that almost all of the time you'll be very welcome. In fact I shall miss you sorely if you don't come often"

Getting Down to Work

"Let's dedicate the shack on that, this way" he said softly His lips came down on mine in a lingering kiss, and I drank the headiest of all draughts—for a wife whose wedding day is several years behind her—the knowledge that in her husband's vocabulary sweetheart and wife are synonymous words

It was a knowledge which heartened me through the next three days and nights of unremitting mental toil. Lillian kept her word that no one should disturb me, and I saw only Dicky who came over for a minute or two twice a day and Katie who brought my meals and took away the trays But she evidently had been warned not to talk to me for she put the trays down in as near an awed silence as Katie can manage and scuttled ludicrously away with them when I had finished my meal and set them on the table near the door

Finished at Last

For I found that my work on the first three acts of my play had been child's work compared with that which I was compelled to put upon the fourth and final act I knew, of course why it was that I was so unduly exercised over it Philip Veriizen had succeeded in doing what Lillian called putting the fear of God into me,' by his remarks concerning the difficulty in writing the final act of a play He had said that while a tyro might do a creditable piece of work up to the last act it was a rare thing for one to succeed at the first trial in writing a satisfactory ending Naturally this comment had stiffened my determination to make my first attempt go but I found that it also had wrought me up nervously to such a pitch that nothing I wrote seemed worth preserving

I worked all through the day and half through the night for the first three days snatching my sleep in naps upon the big comfortable couch hammock upon the veranda, and eating sometimes when the meals were brought in, but more often long afterward when they were stone cold My wastebasket, emptied each morning by Katie, contained a hundred times more manuscript paper than was piled, finished beside my typewriter But somehow, I muddled through, and upon the morning of the fourth day, I wearily but triumphantly drew the last sheet of paper from my typewriter and wrote "End" upon it Crude it was, faulty in many spots and I knew that it would need much revision before its final typing But such as it was, it was finished, and deep within me, despite my natural qualms, I cherished a belief that it was good.

With a queer little feeling that I needed all out-of-doors in which to breathe I opened the veranda door and stepped out into the orchard The harvest smells of a late August day came to me, and for two or three minutes of the blessed rest and relief that follows the completion of a piece of hard work, I revelled in the sounds and smells of the morning

Then from around the barn came running frantic footsteps. Hank's They swerved as he saw me and came directly toward me while Hank gasped out between labored breaths

"Somebody come quick!"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

WHEN me and Jubilee woke up this morning and I pushed Jubilee out of bed I was thinking of yesterday instead of today and wondering who that kid was and then I got out of bed and looked at the new red suspenders my mother got me yesterday evening whilst I was out after the cows with a piece of rope tied around my stummick to hold my britches And then I thought about the girls

A fella wouldn't think anything could look as sweet as a lot of girls do on the first day of school and Tounim was the sweetest one of them all I bet if I could put her in an ice cream cone she would be sweeter than all the ice cream in the world. Even Minly Gertrudis looked good yesterday till the teacher sent her home to put on some clothes. She had come to school wearing a pair of pantaloons that were all the colors there are and a few more. She called them her "Sabanis," and was sure showing her stuff till the teacher grabbed her and run her out of the school yard.

I let Jubilee duck by his nose and then I went down and got the pail and the whole town of Sonora except the girls, and when I got back in and dodged the milk and asked my grandfather how he was feeling and fed my face and went out to take the cows out, me and the bunch went around a lot of streets looking for the kid that grabbed my suspenders but we didn't find him so we took the cows out and got back to school just as the teacher came in the gate and she was smiling and wearing a little sideways hat and Feeble ran to her and kissed her and told her her to-to thunder hat was beautiful and the teacher asted her where she got that name for it and Feeble told her her mother got one and that was what her father called it. Then the teacher went in and we were playing marbles and one of the Big Kids came over and picked up an agate Nibs was playing with and started to walk off and told Nibs he would give him half what he won with it. Then all the bunch looked at me, because that is what the boss of a bunch is for I grabbed the fella and told him he couldn't munky with us and get away with it, and he said, "Oh yeah?" and put his hand against my face and pushed. Then I put my flat against his eye, but I just started to push it before it got to his eye and it snapped his head back, and then Manka with dust out of the basement and primed up short with a mop, and the teacher called us in and took us to the principle's room. She told me I was running home to mom, which was what scared me, and then after an explaining, it just the fella had to give me like a gole. Then she asked us both if we wanted to fight again either, and I did and he didn't. And she told the boy if he didn't want to fight he should not

CHAPTER 33

A Fighter and a Ghost

SAM smiled in spite of herself "I can't believe that it's quite so bad as all that. You can undoubtedly find something just as good as Fourth's invention to put your money in"

"You don't understand," Eugenie shook her head vehemently "I'd rather have lost every cent than have let this happen"

"What do you mean?"

"What I mean is simple enough Mr Aldersea isn't in the book business any more. Not only that but he has plenty of money" Eugenie looked up and Sam was horrified to see that her eyes were filled with tears "It's the end I won't be seeing Mr Aldersea any more"

"Nonsense!" Sam spoke sharply in an attempt to stifle an unreasonable and unwelcome surge of pity

The widow leaned forward with sudden earnestness "Miss Sherrill you and I are both sensible people aren't we"

"Why yes, I suppose we are"

"Very well Being sensible people we both know what we know We know for instance that I am terribly in love with Mr Aldersea"

Sam gasped We do? she inquired

"Yes" Eugenie nodded We not only know that but we also know that Mr Aldersea isn't even slightly interested in me"

"Mrs Fiyel"

"I have no wild ideas about myself" the widow continued calmly "I know exactly what I am I'm cheap and I don't wear good clothes and my voice is bad I can't even talk the same kind of English he talks"

"Please don't talk like that"

"Why not? It's the truth Do you mind if I put the cards on the table? I'd like to tell you about myself—if you can stand it"

Sam murmured "I'd be glad to hear" The widow had suddenly become an intensely interesting figure

"Well" Eugenie began briskly "In the first place you must know that never in my life has anybody given me anything Do you understand?"

"I'm afraid I don't"

"Of course you don't" The widow smiled "You'll see soon enough when I tell you a little bit about my life

"To begin with I was the youngest one of six kids My father worked around the docks and he didn't exactly make what you'd call a lot of money" She laughed "I wasn't so keen about living eight in three rooms"

"That's understandable enough" Sam nodded gravely

"Is it?" the widow inquired "I'm not so sure The rest of them were satisfied enough I wanted something better I was different"

The widow had forgotten Sam altogether She was staring back through the years at three crowded rooms in some dingy tenement

"Yes" Eugenie went on "I was different, but I didn't know it All I knew was that I loved to stand outside theaters watching the nice people going in I'd look at the women And tell myself that some day I'd have clothes like theirs"

She smiled at Sam

"I've always known what I wanted and I've always fought for it I fought for Jim Frye I fought myself from that tenement to where I am now, and I began to think that I hadn't done so badly"

"Gadly?" Sam was genuinely moved You've done wonderful" Sam said

"Have I?" Eugenie shrugged I'll admit that I'd just about decided my fighting days was over Then one day Mr Aldersea came to my house to sell me a set of books and I knew in five minutes that I hadn't even begun I knew right then and there that I wanted him"

"Really?" Sam almost smiled "I didn't know that Fourth was so—"

"I know It sounds foolish somehow and it's hard to explain Maybe it was his voice or the things he talked about. Maybe it was just him Anyhow, there it was I had to think so I stalled him off about the books and told him to come back a day later He went away, and I told myself that I was in for another fight."

"Really?" Sam repeated weakly.

"Yes, I said to myself, 'Eugenie Frye, there's no use for thinking romantic nonsense about this handsome, because a man like him won't fall in love with you. What have you got that you can fight with? Money was the answer. I got a lot of money and Mr. didn't know much or he'd have known that I'd put up a fight. I'd make him fall in love with me, and then I'd show him that I wasn't to be trifled with. I'd make him marry me, and then I'd have him where I wanted him. I'd show him that I was a woman to be reckoned with. I'd show him that I was a woman to be reckoned with. I'd show him that I was a woman to be reckoned with
